Developmental benefits of sand and water play:

Physical development – fine and gross motor skills used in scooping and pouring of water and sand help children to develop hand-eye coordination and hand and arm muscles

Social – children learn to work together and share, and to use their new vocabulary in communicating with each other

Mathematics and science – allowing children to explore and understand basic mathematics and science concepts such as measuring, gravity, floating and sinking

Language – provides an opportunity for children to expand their vocabulary through learning the names of the various apparatus used – e.g. funnel, scoop, sieve, bucket, spade, hose – and in learning basic concepts of mathematics and science – e.g. more/less, larger/smaller, equal/empty/full, heavy/light

Please note: Products are designed for indoor use, do not store outside and minimise exposure to direct sunlight as UV radiation can cause discolouration.
